

Prof. Dr. Béatrice Dumont

Béatrice Dumont is Professor of economics at the University Sorbonne Paris Nord. She is also the Director of the Department of Economics and Jan Tinbergen Professor for European Economics at the College of Europe. She is a research fellow at CEPN-CNRS and a member of the scientific committee of the Global Competition Law Center (GCLC). Between 2006 and 2009, she was a member of the prospective unit of the French Prime Minister on intellectual property rights (IPRs). She studied economics at the Universities of Lille I in France, Aachen in Germany, Edinburgh in Scotland and Paris I Panthéon-Sorbonne where she received a PhD in economics. She was a visiting research fellow at the University of Chicago and MERIT, Maastricht University in The Netherlands. Her research focuses on competition policy and on the economics of innovation and IPRs.