

Léa Crepin PhD defense 06/06/24

Soybean trade and imported deforestation

The Climate Economics Chair has played a decisive role in my research in many ways. Its financial support, through a half-scholarship for my thesis, was essential to successfully carry out my research. Additionally, the funding granted allowed me to participate in five conferences, both in France and abroad. It is also thanks to the Chair that I was able to obtain a grant for a research stay at the Joint Research Centre in Italy. The Chair also provided me with the opportunity to join a rich and diverse professional and academic network. Regular interactions with junior and senior researchers, particularly during internal seminars and annual events, have undoubtedly enriched my work and understanding of climate economics. Finally, the visibility offered by the Chair's communication initiatives allowed me to showcase my work and reach a wider audience.